Data-Driven Decision Making

The faculty had very positive perceptions of Canvas. 35% of the surveyed faculty noted that the LMS has additional features that are useful to both faculty and students, finding the platform very interactive with more ways to effectively deliver material.

Another 35% specifically noted that Canvas has a more user-friendly interface. Faculty noted that Canvas’s “sleeker (less clunky) look” would help students to navigate Canvas more easily and learn more effectively.

Surveyed faculty described Blackboard as “confusing.” Faculty want more efficient media options such as recording, the ability to see more than two students at the same time, and an easier/faster way to create videos. Canvas Studio has all the requested features present in addition to built-in ADA video compliance tools.

More than 2/3 Faculty want Canvas
68% want to switch. Only 13% prefer Blackboard.
